LETTER FROM JAPAN.

Kone Japan 1826. DEAR GAZETTE.-Let me tell you a little about the birds, truits and flowers of this land. It has been said this is a country of birds without note, fruits without flavor and flowers without fragrance; but I affirm that is a great exaggeration. Still, I admit, that as far as I have seen, its birds, fruits and flowers are, when compared with what I have seen The crows, give us kaw, kaw, kaw, abundantly, morning and evening, but being unmolested, they are very bold, and very voracious of young poultry, they are a great nuisance, rendering it necessary to raise chickens under backets of split bamboo. In the cool months we have sparrows, or snow birds, constantly chirping and twittering. Also the Eng-Helt lark which sings sweetly as she sours up toward the sun. We have the stork and other water fowls. also plover and other mountain birds, but all these I believe, are noteless. I know of only one bird that seems to delight in singleg, and that, I suppose is a foreigner or a descendant of one; it is a canary He often salutes us when we enter the room.

Our fruit although considerably inferior, is not all so. Bitter grapes, strawberries or persimmons, I never ate. The berries are not only fine flavored but twice as large as those which I saw at the Islands, some of them being an luch in diameter, and only half as expensive. The persimmons, (to one who has seen and eaten them in N. J.) are surpristhan Hawsiian, apples, pears and quinces are relishable when cooked, plums, wild cherries and other wild fruit are abundant. Oranges are small but well. I regret, that in many cases I cannot tell whether they are exotic or indigenous. I will first name a few which I am told are mative beauties. Apoteius, pink and white, wisterius, with their flower white blossoms. Another shrub of similar form but with smaller, pale blue flowers. Japonicas, white, variegated plak and white and red. They are all large and full of petals like a full blown rose. The proof, there are three varieties, pink, white and red, when full blown is about 6 inches in diameter-We have many roses of various colors, some of them climbers, screening a large part of a verandah, and sometimes loaded with flowers.

We have a great variety of ornamental shrubbery. The most interesting, I think are the pines and the cedars of which there are several varieties, some of very deep green and thick foliage. You have heard of their fern balls. They are sometimes made in the every part and always enclosed in a net to be suspended wherever the owner chooses. But these are triffes, concerning which, were I able to labor for this people, I should have neither time nor incline tion to write. Young Japan is tuger to learn English, and I have spent at various times an hour a day in teaching several interesting young men who come to my room for instruction in reading and spelling.
